

BullsEye Dog Rescue Special Ask

BULLSEYE DOG RESCUE NEEDS YOUR HELP NOW!

Just today we received word that one of wonderful Pit Bulls looking for their forever home will need to be hospitalized for what looks to be pneumonia. Her name is PENNY, and she came to us from our partnership with The Humane Society for Seattle-King County.

Shortly after arriving in her foster home, Penny developed kennel cough. She received treatment right away, but unfortunately this girl's many months at the shelter has weakened her immune system and the kennel cough proved to be too much for her little puppy body.

Between the hospital stay, i.v. fluids and medications, x-rays, and ongoing treatment this little girl will

DUCATI ALSO NEEDS YOUR HELP!

Ducati is a seven year old Pit Bull that has lost what was her forever home as result of the housing crisis. Ducati lived in a home with two other dogs and three children. She is the most well behaved, well adjusted, perfect family dog we could ever hope for. Her smile lights up the room whenever she sees children, and children light up when they interact with Ducati!

Her family was forced to relinquish her to PAWS due to ignorance and fear - no landlord would accept a Pit Bull.

BullsEye Dog Rescue was contacted by Lisa, PAWS' shelter manager, when shelter life became too stressful for this lovely girl. Ducati had lived in a home for so long and is so potty trained that she was trying hard not to potty in her kennel. The result was an ongoing bladder infection and urinary crystals. She had also developed a recurrent infection on her soft little belly from laying on How could we say no to this well behaved breed ambassa-dog?! We couldn't, of course.

Ducati is now in one of our most experienced foster homes and is still receiving medical care for her urinary issues and infection.
